The Greeks were the cameo-cutters par excellence, and the finest of the so-called Roman work is done by Greek artists, who were tempted by the large profits which were to be made by the prosecution of this art in the Imperial City. The finest technique reached its fullest development before about 70 A.d. The successors of Augustus were all more or less lovers of rich treasures of art, but, like other arts, that of cameo-cutting had its good periods and its bad periods, and for the succeeding three hundred years the workmanship varied considerably in excellence. As a general rule, after the third century the art declined at Rome, and was then very likely done largely by Roman workmen instead of the more skilled Greeks. Constantine the Great put a final stop to the Graeco-Roman art when he moved his court and...
