Excerpt: .associated with similar deposits in the liver and spleen. As a rule, there is no local pain or general fever, and the existence of the disease is surmised only by the presence of albumen in the urine and the history of the case. It should be remembered, however, that the urine is not always albuminous, and then the diagnosis cannot be made, except by a post mortem examination. Syphilis of the ureter and prostate does not seem to occur, neither does syphilis of the bladder, except in connection with disease of the spinal cord. The spermatic cord is sometimes the seat of gummy deposits. Gummata occur in the corpora spongiosum, and in the corpora cavernosa in very rare cases as a hard, painless nodule without redness. It has a semi-elastic feel when pressed between the fingers. If seated on one side, it causes deflection of the penis when erect toward that side; but if it assume the annular form, the penis, during erection, is turged from the crura to the seat of the lesion, but beyond that is flaccid and hangs at right angles to the rest of the organ. The tumor reaches a certain size, and then may soften and shrivel away, or possibly may become fibrous. A patient under treatment now who has been treated with the I odides, Illereary, etc., besides the local application of Iodine is steadily improving under the administration of Goniam. Syphilis of the testicle, known under the...
