If the amount has not yet become due, the sum will be deposited, until maturity, with some safe bank or broker, and the interest collected thereon refunded to the depositor. The company is not obliged to give notice of such deposits to the holder of the warrant. IX. If the amount of the warrant has neither been paid nor deposited on the day of maturity, the warrant must be presented, at the latest, on the second week day after the date of maturity at the place of payment to the first creditor, and, in case of nonpayment, must be protested through a notary public at the place of payment. 12. If the amount of the warrant, including 6 per cent interest from the date of maturity, and the cost of protesting be not paid or deposited within three days from date of protest, the holder of the warrant may demand, in writing, the sale of the goods by surrendering the protest and warrant. The first creditor, having redeemed the warrant, has the same right at the expiration of seven days from the day of payment, provided no protest has been entered. If the date of sale and the number of previous notices have not been mentioned by the mover for the sale of the goods, the company itself determines both according to the following paragraphs: 13. The sale is conducted publicly by an official of the...
